

ABOUT COMPNOW

COMPANY PROFILE

Partners for your future.

Many businesses across the world are now harnessed to the cloud and other technologies in their day-to-day operations, yet integrating the latest technological advancements as they emerge is still a challenge.

With the ever-changing IT landscape, it is no wonder that more than half (51%) of chief information officers report feeling unprepared for future technological developments, according to a Gartner survey.

Fortunately, for organisations that have wrestled to integrate technology into their business plans, and educational institutions having difficulty harnessing technology, Computers Now (CompNow) can help.

100% Australian owned & operated.

CompNow is a 100% privately owned organisation dedicated to offering customised procurement, deployment & support plans and services for education, government and business enterprises.

Founded in Melbourne in 1990, CompNow has more than 25 years of successful trading history, providing sales, service and support across the technology spectrum. CompNow trades Australia wide, as well as in New Zealand and parts of Asia.

Super computers in your pocket, and the reign of the cloud.

CompNow strives to remain ahead of the technology curve, exploring all new developments and working to remain industry leaders across all major platforms. We work with many key technology suppliers and manufacturers to provide our clients with an effective and considered service and solutions tailored to their individual needs.

When CompNow was founded, the technology industry was a small and underutilised sector - with the idea of carrying a supercomputer around in your pocket considered an impossible concept. From that point, the technology sector has expanded exponentially in the realm of education and business, and CompNow has grown with it.

Discover our proven reputation.

Our dedication to customer support and industry leading education and innovation has encouraged some of our founding clients to stick with us for more than 20 years. Our ability to attract return business is just one measure of our strong reputation.

Additionally, some of our vendors have been working with us for more than 20 years. In the fast-changing technology industry, 20 years is a lifetime, so the ability to retain clients and vendors over that time proves we have the right approach to evolve alongside our customers, the IT industry and the many technology and device developments.
